What makes it difficult for couples that originally loved each other so deeply to maintain affectionate, unguarded relationships with one another as the years go by? Modern couples face profound challenges in maintaining emotional and sexual intimacy. As professionals, we need empathy, wisdom, energy, specialized knowledge—and sometimes courage—to help couples distressed by their disconnection. Using lecture, case studies, and group discussions, we will take a deep look at the biological, societal, and intrapsychic forces that make staying in connection so difficult. You will come away with some new ideas, new models, and new interventions to help.

Aline Zoldbrod, Ph.D., is an AASECT certified sex therapist (since 1996) and the author of three commercially published books on sexuality and intimacy. Her 1998 book, SexSmart, is an award-winning book recommended by top sexual experts. She developed the interpersonal theory of sexual development, The Milestones of Sexual Development, and blogs at Newsmax.com.
